Victoria Falls is a waterfall on the Zambezi River, located on the border between Zambia and Zimbabwe. It is one of the world's largest waterfalls, (26) _____ a width of 1,708 m (5,604 ft). The region around it has a high degree of (27) _____ in both plants and animals.

Archaeology and oral history describe a long record of African knowledge of the site. Although known to some European geographers before the 19th century, Scottish missionary David Livingstone (28) _____ the falls in 1855, naming them Victoria Falls after Queen Victoria. Since the mid-20th century, the site has been a (29) _____ tourist destination. Zambia and Zimbabwe both have national parks and tourism infrastructure at the site. Research in the late 2010s found (30) _____ precipitation variability due to climate change is likely to alter the character of the falls.

Solar Power

Solar power is power that is generated from sunlight. Solar power is a renewable energy source, because when we use solar power, we aren't permanently using (31) _____ any of the Earth's resources like when we burn coal or oil. Solar energy is also considered a "green" energy source (32) _____ it does not generate pollution as it is used.

You have probably seen solar panels on the roofs of houses. Solar panels are panels of individual solar cells, also called photovoltaic cells. The first practical silicon solar cell was demonstrated at Bell Labs on April 25, 1954. Since then, they have not only become a popular and cost effective way to power homes and commercial buildings, they have also been used to (33)_____ spaceships and satellites. The U.S. government has been offering tax advantages for the use of solar power since 1990.

However, there are some (34)_____ to solar power. One is that sunshine is not always consistently available due to time of day, time of year, and the weather. (35)_____ is that photovoltaic cells are expensive, so converting to solar power typically requires a significant up-front financial investment.

Cycling in the countryside

By Chris Jones, aged 14

Have you ever been cycling? This spring my older brother and I left the busy city and spent a long weekend cycling in the countryside. Our average speed was only around 14 kph, but that didn't matter. We hadn't come to break any speed records, or to get fit and healthy. All we wanted was some fresh air and a break from schoolwork. My bike only once went more than 30 kph, and that was when I raced my brother down the only hill on our route.

We really enjoyed cycling along flat, traffic-free country paths. There was plenty of spring sunshine, but it was quite cold, especially in the mornings. We didn't mind, though - and we soon warmed up as we rode along. Our only problem was when my brakes started making a terrible noise. But I didn't mind as it gave us an excuse to visit a café while a helpful bike mechanic had a look at it.

That was one of the best things about our route: every few kilometres there was a village where we could find everything we needed. All the local people were really friendly, too.

However, most places we stopped at served chips with all the meals, which soon got fairly boring. One night we were woken at 4 a.m. by a group of rugby fans singing loudly in the hotel corridor.

We were tired and bad-tempered when we set off the next morning and very nearly got lost, but soon felt more cheerful when the sun came out. That's what I like about cycling - it's simple and it's fun. If you're looking for a short break that's active and cheap, then cycling is a great choice!
